Two crypto charity auctions were held successfully

In May we announced two charity auctions. In June token holders had the chance to fight for the desirable lots. The 100% of received money was donated to charitable organizations.

The first one was a pair of boots from Sergey Kornilenko, a Belarusian professional football coach and a former player who played as a striker. The auction supported the Khabensky charitable foundation. It organizes crowdfunding and medical help for children with oncological and other hard diseases of the brain. There were 9 bids in this auction and the winning one was $157.

Sergey Kornilenko: “...I scored many important goals in them. I kept these boots in memory of my career. I will be very glad that they will still be useful – not on the football field, but like a lot at the auction.”

The second lot was from a Russian professional tennis player and 2018 Kremlin Cup winner Daria Kasatkina. Daria decided to support the Zhivoy Foundation. They help doctors, who fight coronavirus in distant points of Russia, by providing with first-class protective equipment: suits, shields, gloves, shoe covers. There were 9 bids in the auction and the winner proposed $106 for Daria’s Tecnifibre tennis racquet.

Two voting activities have finished

Two players among applicants have passed through voting procedure on our platform. First, our tennis experts evaluated the basic skills and main techniques like forehand, backhand, volleys, and footwork. Then our community had the chance to support or not the players.

Darya Astakhova got both high and balanced scores from our experts with the resulting score of 3.81/5. She was also approved by the community with 80% of votes. Since that time we started to develop partnership terms with Darya to reach the most beneficial results for both Darya and TokenStars.

Woodam Song got less homogeneous results and the final score of 2.25/5. He was rejected by the community with the 73.1% votes against him. So for now we are not ready to continue our collaboration.
